VOL. IV NO. 211

WASHINGTON, March 4 (Agencies) — President Jimmy Carter and Prime Minister Menahem Begin talked late into Saturday night but there was no sign that they had broken the Middle East peace impasse. They met after dinner with their wives at the White House Saturday night as U.S. and Israeli officials were signalling that failure seemed certain without a sudden breakthrough. They were expected to meet again Sunday for a fourth perhaps final - attempt to try to overcome profound disagreements over the composition of any treaty.

Officials believed Sunday would be the last day of the talks, which began on Thrusday night unless. Begin softened bis unyielding opposition to the Egyptian call for changes in a draft treaty worked out with Israel.

No time was set for another meeting but it appeared unlikely before mid-afternoon.

Begin planned to appear on televized interview show at which be was expected to give the first detailed account of the

ABU DHABI, March 4 (Agencies) - The United Arab Emirates Sunday threatened to blacklist oil companies which it said were reaping huge refined petroleum profits during the current oil shortage. UAE Petroleum Minister

Mana Said al Oteiba, opening the first Arab Energy conference, said that two weeks ago major oil companies which sup-plied 75 per cent of the UAE's needs in refined petroleum products had asked to raise their prices by 80 per cent. Dr. Oteiba later told Renters that the UAE bad rejected the demand and the companies would be blacklisted. He did not name them.

He said he would raise the issue at the consultative meeting of OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) in Geneva on March 26.

" I shall suggest the blacklisting of such companies," be said. Speaking to the conference, Dr. Oteiba Said: "We call on the consuming countries, especially the developing nations, to oppose such ugly exploitation by

Iran doubles oil production

AHWAZ, Iran, March 4 (R)

— Iran Sunday more than donbled its crude oil production on the eve of a crucial resumption of oil exports, officials of the National Iranian Qil Company (NIOC) said.

The new production of 1.6 million barrels a day was more than twice that of the last 10 weeks, but only just under a qurter of the previous output peak of 6.5 million barrels a day before the beginning of the Iraman oil strike last October.

NIOC officials at this southwestern oil center said the first

A NOTICE FROM THE SAUDI ARABIAN MONETARY AGENCY REGARDING A NEW ISSUE OF FAO COINS

The Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency hereby announces to the public that a commemorative issue of metal coins of 10 and 5 Halalas denominations would be put into circulation in a limited quantity with effect from Tuesday 15.4.1399 (13th March 1979) in accordance with Royal Decree No. 6 dated 1/7/1379. This issue was minted at the request of the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) of the United Nations in support of its program "Food For All." The Kingdom has previously minted and put into circulation other denominations of Saudi metal coins in support of this program:

This new issue is fully covered by gold and foreign exchange and it would circulate side by side with the 10 and 5 halalas denomination currently in circulation. SAMA has already taken the necessary steps for putting this issue into circulation from all its branches simultaneously.

The main features of these commemorative coins can be briefly outlined as follows :-

10 Halala (FAO)

It is round in shape, made of cupro-nickel and with milled edge. Its diameter is 21 mm.

OBVERSE

In the upper part is inscribed the name of H.M. the King "KHALID BIN ABDUL" AZIZ AL-SAUD"; in the lower part the "King of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia" is inscribed; in the middle appears the Saudi Coat-of-Arms (two swords and a palm tree).

REVERSE

In the upper part appears the verse "They give food though they like it"; in the middle inside the inner circle "Quershan" surrounded on both sides by the numerical value of the coin in Arabic and English, below that appears the inscription "Ten Halala" then the year of mint 1398 A.H. (1978 A.D.)

5 Halala (FAO)

It is round in shape, made of cupro-nickel and with milled edge. Its diameter is 19.5 mm.

OBVERSE

In the upper part is inscribed the name of H.M. the King "KHALID BIN ABDUL AZIZ AL-SAUD"; in the lower part the "King of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia" is inscribed; in the middle appears the Saudi Coat-of-Arms (two swords and a palm tree)

In the upper part appears the verse "They give food though they like it"; in the middle inside the inner circle (One Quersh) surrounded on both sides by the numerical value of the coin in Arabic and English, below that appears the inscription "Five Halala" then the year of mint 1398 A.H. (1978 A.D.)

The Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency would like to assure the public that the coin of the 10 Halala and 5 Halala denomination currently in circulation would continue to circulate side by side with the new issue.

Giscard coming under increasing fire in France

PARIS, March 4 (AP) - President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, once expected to win re-election easily in 1981, is coming under increasingly sharp attack as France's unemployment, labor and energy worries build.

While the 53-year-old president visited Mexico last week, his leftist opponents joined forces with conservative Gaullists in his own center-right coalition to demand a special National Assembly session to consider growing violence in France's sixmonth-old steel crisis. The president was expected to issue a decision shortly after his scheduled return Sunday.

According to a poli published Saturday in the weekly magazine of "Le Figaro," Giscard now commands the confidence of only 51 per cent of his countrymen, a drop of six points in a month and 11 points since Jan. 1.

Prime Minister Raymond Barre, whose effort to reform the nation's ailing steel industry has sparked increasingly violent opposition, is also losing support among France's 53 million people, the poll said

Only 36 per cent of Frenchmen and women now have faith in him, a slide of six points over the past month, the poll

Of the 1,000 questioned, 57 per cent said they had little or no confidence in Barre's ability to solve France's problems. Giscard, elected to a seven-year term in 1974, received a rating of little or no confidence from 43 per cent of those

The poli came as the nation's unemployment rate rose to 6.1 per cent, inflation continued at just under 10 per cent a year, and French motorists prepared for an April 1 rise in the price of gasoline, which already costs 2.75 francs a liter (about $2.50 a gallon).

As France's major trade unions debated a suggested march on Paris March 23 to protest the government's steel policy, the tension increased Saturday in Lorraine, the iron-rich region of France hardest hit by the estimated 35,000 layoffs projected in the steel industry by 1981.

Seventeen railroad cars loaded with iron ore were overturned near Longwy, the mill town that has become the symbol of the steel crisis.

In significant contrast to other recent steel-related incidents, which have ranged from childrens' marches to an occupation of the Eiffel Tower, none of France's major trade unions claimed responsibility.

In another development, the communist-run National Pederation of Docks and Ports called for 24-hour strikes Monday and Thursday against curtailed overtime and for better retirement benefits and holiday pay.

NAIROBI, March 4 (AP)-Rhodesian guerrilla's learler Robert Mugabe has said his guernilla forces will not be intimidated by Rhodesian bombling raids on their bases and are determined to sabotage elections next month.

Mugabe, who is co-leader with Joshua Nicomo of the Patriotic Front, said the elections were "illegal and frandulently arranged".

Mugabe was speaking in an interview with the "Sunday Nation".

The interview took place here Thursday, shortly before Mugabe Gew to Maputo, after addressing a ministerial meeting of the 49-nation Organization of Affician Unity.

Mugabe said he wondered if Rhodesians would be expected to support elections "which seek to entrench white control of the entire socioeconomic structure of the country.

Portugal Socialists will fight as active opposition

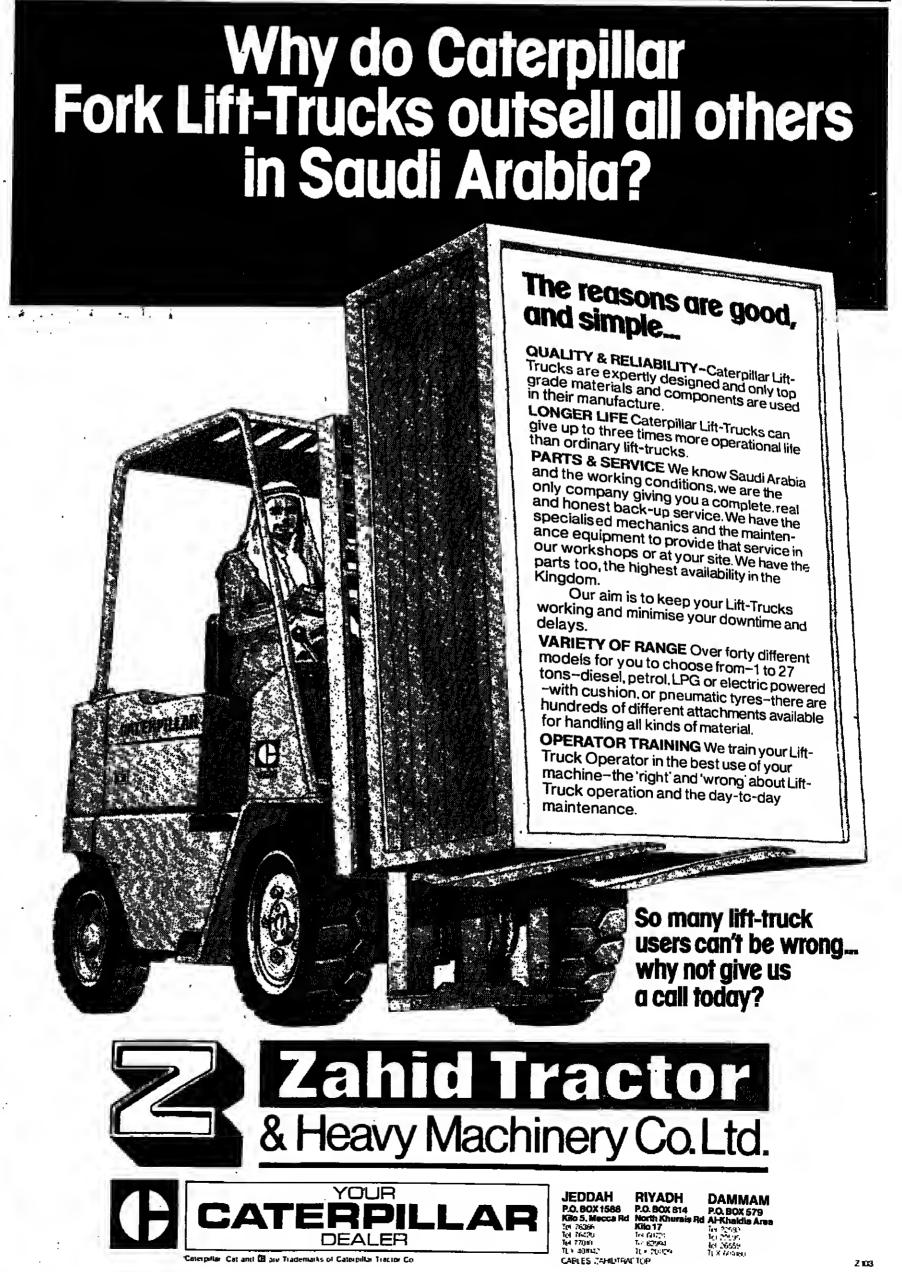

LISBON, March 4 (AP) -Portuguesa Socialists, in a show of strength and unity unseen since their fall from government jast summer, have voted to oppose the govern-ment of Prime Minister Carlos Moia Pinto as a reminder that the country's largest party retains substantial popular Support.

The vote came at the Socialist Party's annual congress as nearly all of the 1,000 dedegates came out in support of an earlier speech by party leader Mario Soares criticizing the policies of Mota Pinto's careraker government

Soares said the Socialist position was "clear and from a opposition" after the vote, but added, "we must think of the fumre before taking any step."

The speech also revered a former party position by sta-ting Socialist willingness to join in early elections if the present non-party government is brought down in parliament.

French Socialist leader Francois Mitterand, speaking in an observer capacity as acting president of the Socialist International, supported the participation of Socialist parties in the expansion of the European Economic Community.

NEW ALLY

While the Arah states which rejected the Camp David accords were apprehensive that they would lose one of their most important partners in confronting Israel, they should be cheer ed by the Iranian government declaration that it considered itself a frontline state. Thus Iranian fighters are willing to throw in their lot with the Arabs in their resistance to Israeli occupation and expansionism.

This is a development that even our wildest dreams could not have anticipated as recently as a year ago. The Shah tilted noticeably in favor of Israel, supplied it with oil, traded with it and hired its personnel for various purposes.

Such a statement by a responsible tranian leader may not change the balance of power in the region markedly over the next few months. But it is a moral victory for the Palestinians and the Arabs in general to learn that Iran with all its human and material might is their friend and may even carry arms

To the Iranians, the fall of Jerusalem was as painful as it was to the Arabs and other Muslims, but they could do little about it as long as the Shah denied them the freedom to express their indignation and sympathize more openly with other Muslims,

It is ironic that the arms the Shah was collecting to bludgeon his Arab neighbors and force them to compete in wasteful arms race may someday be used to liberate their lands. Another dramatic development came when the new Tehran government expressed friendship for the smaller Gulf states which seldom concealed their apprehensions of the Shah's intentions of which disdainful tolerance was only the least

With such changes in Iran to gladden the hearts of the Arabs, comes a new stake in the stability and tranquility of their neighbor.

Iran is still in the throcs of a revolution with certain elements running amok despite the presence of a government acceptable to the majority even if it has not been directly elected as vet. The extreme rightists are being carried away by the outoursts of long pent-up feelings of inadequacy and helpless ness. They expect too much reform at breakneek speed which may be inadvisable at this stage.

The other major force for total change is the Tudeh communist party which is demanding a share of power with designs to seize everything for itself at a later stage.

It is fervently hoped that neither will be permitted to subvers the peace which from needs to badly at least until the people decide what they want through a general election.

WORKING PAPERS

As the Arab League Council met in Kuwait to devise a formula for peace between the two Yemen republics, South Yemen presented it with a working paper that is nearly impossible to implement.

It was not altogether supprising that the paper contained clause for immediate unity between the two countries. North Yemen has-understandably-rejected this and called for a commission of inquiry into the course of their constant

South Yemen said that only unity will heat the wounds, but it did not give enough details or how. It only said that the two regions would exercise internal autonomy under the appervision of a central government either in Sanaa or Aden. This is aimost a re-enactment of the situation that followed the war of 1972. At the beheat of the Arab League the prime ministers of the two countries met in Tripoli to thrash out their differences.

And it was truly a surprise when they came out with a joint communique declaring the imminent unification of the two countries. Committees were formed to pave the way for unity. It never came even other six years of meetings in Aden

Both governments knew that it was impossible to bring about a genuine unification simply because their two political systems are so disparate that any unity would soon fall apart, It was tried before between Tanganyika and the Marxistmiled island of Zunzibar to form Tanzania, Few Tanzanians really believe that the union works successfully, although the sistems of government in both countries are less dissimiliar than those of the two Yemens. South Yemen proclaims Marxism as the way to prosperity and equality, while North Yemen is not only Islamic but gives a great deal of incentives to private enterprise - so much so that even government corporations must by law take on private investors as partners and shareholders.

The government in South Yemen controls external and internal trade, land, transportation, entertainment or pharmacies, while in North Yeaten private enterprise thrives from farms two thousand meters high in the mountains to fishing hoats in the Red Sea.

It would of course be excellent if a more reasonable for mula could be found to bring about unity. The people on both sides sincerely want it, to crown their ethnic, religious, linguistic and social affinities,

But it is not likely to happen very soon. It would now he more realistic to adopt North Yemen's working paper and delve into the immediate causes of these seasonal confronta-

Middle class power

By John de St. Jorre TEHRAN

Dr. Mohammad Beglari, a London-trained surgeon in his late forties, raises his hand and listens intently to the radio. He has been miking about the Iranian revolution but now he is playing his part in it, as he and thousands of other Iranian professional and middle-class people have done for the past year or more. The radio carries an urgent appeal for doctors to go to one of Tehran's hospitals. Beglari aushes to the telephone and checks with several of his colleagues. "It's all right," he says, sitting down again, "heey have enough ... Now where were we?" He leaves the ra-

The Iranian revolution, like most revolutions, took a heavy toll in human life, Thousands were killed in the long period of turmoil that led up to the coup de grace in early Febr-

It was not, however, simply a shapeless explosion of discontent. It had a messianic voice, that of the unbending Ayatolish Khomeini. It had muscle in the Muslim masses who time and again faced the soldiers in the streets. And, equally important, it had middie-class sinew in the critical layers of industry, government, business and commence.

The strikes in the oil industry, at first broken and then sustained, soucceed the Shah's financial capacity to survive.
Paralysis spread rapidly to other institutions but it was the ability of those who opposed the monarchy to mainrain the basic necessities of life, while frustrating the govertment's mandate to govern, that proved so signally success-

"The Ministry of Health packed up because of the strikes," Beglari says, "but the hospitals went on functioning. A few doctors went abroad.

the Hadey Street kind you might say, but most stayed and worked like hell, not because they were paid to do so - they weren't — but because they wanted to." The hospitals had a difficult time partly due to the number of casuatties and partly to the raids that Savak, the Shah's secret police, and the army often made on them. "When wounded were brought in," Beglari says, "We listed them as car accident casualties, but was often touch and go.'

The hospitals were not the only institutions that kept going of their own volition. The telephone system, vital to the revolutionaries, never broke down. On the day of the final collapse I saw a militiaman, with a gun over his shoulder, in a call-box phoning for re-inforcements. When the oil strike resulted in power cuts, heating and petrol shortages the strikers increased production just enough to take care of domestic needs.

How coordinated all this was is difficult to know. But it worked because the disenchantment with the Shah and his system had permeated so-

The merchanis of the Tehran bazaar closed their shuttens and bank-rolled the revotution. Central bank employees published lists naming Iranians who had sent huge sums of money abroad (several individuals had transferred millions of dollars). Radio and television announcers refused to read the news so army officers, in civilian clothes, had to do the job instead.

"The atmosphere in the hospitals is so different," Beglari continues, "in the old days it was listless, selfish and depressing. Now you have the wounded hobbling around belging those worse off. Before the revolutionaries took over the Tehran radio station, appeals for drugs, food, bandages, blood — what-ever was needed — were made by all sonts of means: telephone, wail posters, stickers on cars, despatch riders even runners. "If we required anything," says the doctor, "the word would go out and in no time the response area." time the response would be overwhelming.

The Iranian revolution, again like most revolutions, received its initial impetus from the middle classes, Many Iranians who were abroad returned with their skills and money to help. (Aircraft were full in both directions during the tast few weeks before the collapse of the old regime.) But isn't all that history now?

"Certainly not," says the doctor, cooking his ear to the radic again. "The revolution is not over," he says, echoing the opinion of many Iranians. "We must consolidate what we have won and for that we are going to need every scrap of dedication and discipline we have got."

He, like many of his countrymen believes that Iran is going to need a period of Strong government during which some liberties may have to be at least temporarily cur-

Tribe faces demise

By Geofrey Lean

The largest remaining isola-ted tribe of Amazonian Indians in Brazil is facing destruction.

Antibropologists from uni-versities in Brazilia, Sac Paulo and Rio de Janeiro and missionaries working with Indians are protesting against plans by a government agency to create 21 reserves for the Yanomami tribe who inhabit vast areas of forest near the Venezuelan

The reserves, proposed by the much criticised National Foundation for the Indian (FUNAI) but still to be formally decreed, would be scattered pockets of land in the 15 million acres of the tribe's traditional area.

These pockets, say the cri-tics, inevitably will become corrounded by colonists bent on exploiting the land and its resources. The forest will be felled for agriculture and ran-ching and a "mining invasion" will take place. Lange mineral deposits, particularly uranium, have already been discovered iti iline termon winere one o surgest concentrations of the Yanomami live.

Pant of the Northern Perimeter Highway, one of the great roads being driven the rough the florest by the Brazilians, has already been built in the area. Construction was halted in 1976 but it is expected to resume this year.

Protestors say that the reserves would be small "Bantustans", too restricted to suscain the Indians. They are shifting cultivators who move their villages every few years, and thus need large areas of hand to survive. Their system of exploiting the land is much more suitable to the fragile some of the area than the modem methods of colonisers.

A roving Australian violinist

By A Staff Reporter JEDDAH -- On March 7, the visiting Australian violinist Ronald Woodcock and the pianist Caroline Haffner will give a recital at the British ambassador's residence here.

The Jeddah recital Wednesday follows a lour by Woodcock and Haffner of the East; arn Province and Riyadh, Haffner is a resident of Jeddah.

On Feb. 28 in Riyadh, the duo performed before an appreciativa audience at the house of Leonard Ingrams. They had iusi arrived from Dhahran where they had given six concerts in three days. "The audiences were wonderful", they said of Dhahran. "People here come to concerts because they are really glad to have the chance in listen to music. In Europe. audiences are sometimes blase, but here, never. The artist is always keenly aware of the mood of his histenars, so to play for audiences like thase is a real pleasure."

The concerts in the Eastern Province were organized by Aramco. The duo gave midday bases in Ras Tanura, Abquiq and Dhahran. The Australian Embassy had asked the Jeddah Concert Committee if Caroline Haffner would come to Dhahran to accompany Woodcock. They only had time to rehearse logethar once before their first concert, but managed to achie-

As the first English language newspaper in the Kingdom, "Arab News" has established itself as a complete informa service and has earned the confidence of readers and advertisers.

"Arab News" has also sought to present a special economic service by publishing "Saudi Business" weekly which provides information for businessmen and economists inside and outside the Kingdom.

Their sister publication "Asharq Al-Awsat" is the first truly international Arabic daily which, although only a few months old, has achieved wide circulation and is now printed in London and Jeddah and will soon be printed in the Gulf and Frankfurt, West Germany.

The three publications published by the Saudi Research and Marketing Company of Jeddah, have a large circulation and cover a wide geographic area of distribution through which advertisers can achieve brilliant results.

Saudi Research and Marketing Company and Tihama Company for Advertising, Public Relations and Marketing Studies, have reached an agreement under which Tihama will have the advertising franchise for the three publications as of April 1. 1979. Tihama will be the sole advertising representative for the ihree publications inside and outside Saudi Arabia.

Clients of the three publications are requested to contact Tihama in Jeddah, its branches in Riyadh, Dammam and Mecca or its representatives in Taif and Medina, for their advertising in these publications as of April 1, 1979.

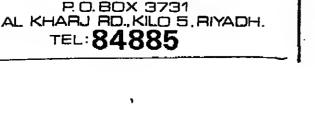

Advertisers outside the Kingdom are requested to contact Tihama's head office in Jeddah and or its office in London or any advertising agency abroad having representation arrangements with Tihama.

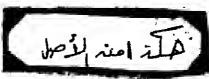

New advertising rates in the three publications will be as effective March 1 1979.

Bizarre ski accident mars Wirnsberger downhill win

LAKE PLACID, New York, March 4 (AP) — Leonard Dawid of Italy spent (we hours on the operating table Saturday while doctors removed a blot clot from his brain, the result of a bizarre skiing injury that overshadowed a superb World Cup victory by Peter Wirnsberger of Austria.

After the operation at the Burlington, Vermont, Medical Center the operating neurosurgeon, Dr. Henry Schmidek, said the operation was a success. There was no long term prognosis, however.

"The critical period will be the next five to seven days." said Giovanni Rizzuto, an attache to the Italian Osympic Committee. "For that period. we will remain at the Burlington hospital."

David fell less than 100 yards from the finish line of a World Cup downhild race at the 1980 Olympic course at Whiteface Mountain Saturday morning.

He lost control on a hump, spun several times and slid through the finish line. He got back up and skied over to one of his coaches, but as he bent

When he feld, I went over to him, but he ignored me," said Dr. Arthur Ellison of Wil-Hamstown, Massachusetts. an orthopedic surgeon who was stationed at the finish line. "He looked a little dazed, perhaps, but not injured."

After he collapsed, however, Ellis said he inserted a tuhe into his threoat to allow the 19-year-old David to breathe.

David was evacuated by Air Force helicopter to hurlington, where surgery was performed immediately.

There was a lot of speculation that David was related to an injury two weeks ago at the Italian national downhill in Cortina. David fell in that race and sustained a concussion.

Dr. Schmidek released the following statement: "When he arrived at the hospital. David was in critical condition. He had a large hemorrhage in his head and a large buildup of blood. We operated and took out the blood. There are no other signs of problems in the

"His condition, for now, is stable," Schmidek said. Italian men's coach Josef Messner said David passed all the medical tests required after his accident in Cortina.

Peter Mueller of Switzerland. the World Cup downbill leader, was second in 1:42.91, followed by David Murray of Canada in 1:42.99, Leonbard Stock of Austria in 1:43.16 and Ulrich Spiess of Austria in 1:43.25.

Phil Mahre of the United States, second in the overall Cup standings to Peter Luescher of Switzerland, finished a disappointing 38th in 1:47,55.

IMF experts to discuss dollar fall

WASHINGTON, March (AP)—One of the main reasons for the decline of the dollar is that people outside the United States own 500 billion of them or more and many would like to own something else instead. The International Monetary Fund is now shinking of dealing with the situation Experts from many of the 138 countries so the IMF will be in Washington this. Wes for a series of meetings. These will be climaxed by a session of the 21-member interim committee under the chairmantin of Denis Healey, the Britis chancellor of the exchequer. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal will speak for th United States. For the first time a repre sendative of Sandi Ambia Sheikh Mahsun Jalal, will be on the committee.

Members will spend much of their time talking about the worries of the world economy: inflation, and the huge excess -now running at more than $3 trillion a month-of what Americans spend absorad over what they take in. A practical measure been proposed that would help remedy the pile-up of dollar abroad, usually blamed that excess.

The proposal is to create

"substitution account" in the IMP. Central banks hold dollars—the U.S. Treasur estimates that they hold abou $200 billion could pay then into this account. In exchang they would get "Specia Drawing Rights" on the IME known in the jargon of inter national banking as "SDR's. An SDR is now worth abor $1,30.

Shelling 85 km south

Tanzanian invasion force slowly closing on Kampala

NAIROBI, March 4 (AP) — A town only 85 kilometers south of the Ugandan capital of Kampala has come under heavy shelling by Tanzanian invaders, sources in Kampala reported

Sunday. The informants, reached by telephone, said Lukaya, on the main road from Tanzania to Kampala along the western shore of Lake Victoria, has been heavily bombarded by Tanzanian artillery for the past several

The shelling appeared to be a prelude to another advance by the Tanzanians, who pierced into southern Uganda on a punitive expedition after repelling an invasion of Tanzania's northern major Uganda towns south of Lukaya, Mbarara and Masaka, were down. Both are believed to be in the hands of the Tanzanians, anti-Amin Ugandan exiles and mutinous troops.

Diplomatic sources in Kampala said the capital itself remained quiet, with essendal services and markets functioning normally. They said there was no

Burmese visit may end Thai troubles

Bangkok, March 4 (AP) -Burmese President General U Ne Win arrived here Sunday to begin a three-day visit which Thai authorides hope may lead to the settlement of the problem of Burmese rebels along the Thai-Burmese border.

The Burmese leader was greeted at Bangkok's Don Muang Airport by King Bhumipol Adulyadej, Crown Prince Vajiralongkorn, cabinet ministers and members of the diplomade corps.

Ne Win received a 21-gun salute and reviewed the guards of hooor before proceeding to the Bangkok Metropolitao Administration Pavillion where he was prescoted the keys of the

The president is scheduled to talk with Prime Minister Kriangsak Chamanan Monday on various topics, including the problems of Burmese rebels, a joint fishing veoture and an intensification of the drug suppression campaign along the Thai-Burmese border.

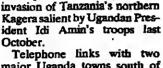

Ne Win is expected to seek reassurance from Kriangsak that Thailand will not provide sanctuaries to the Burmese rebels, including Burmese ethnic groups who have set up strongholds along the border area to fight

THE PRINCE OF WALES: Prince Charles, shown here at the royal residence of Balmoral in Scotland, is visiting the crown colony of Hong Kong and will continue on to Singapore, Australia and Canada.

First stop on 4-country trip

Charles sightseeing in Hong Kong

HONG KONG, March 4 (AP) - Britain's Prince Charles ate a Chinese bean sprout, checked the price of local fish and piloted a helicopter to a picnic ground overlooking the South China Sea Sunday during a second hectie day in Hong Kong.

At a public market in a housing project in the new territories bordering China, a crushing crowd closed in on the 30-yearold prince as he made his way down narrow lanes checking out fresh meat, vegetables, flowers and bean curd. "Can't you organize any of them?" he jokingly asked photographers.

Several thousand youngsters waving colored flags — not Britain's Unioo Jack — turned out to catch a glimpse of the heir to the British throne. The prince stopped several times to chat, once asking a group of young girls in green school uniforms: ish?" There was no response until an interpreter translated the question into Cantonese and the answer was: " Hello."

Hong Kong was the first stop on the prince's four-country tour. He flies to Singapore Tuesday and then goes on to Australia and Canada

Prince Charles arrived here Saturday on his first official visit to this booming British colony at the tip of South China and was supposed to spend a quiet eveoing following an early reception recovering from his 6,000-mile journey. But he ended up taking a spootaneous late-evening sightseeing tour. " He was tired but he didn't feel like going to bed at 10 p.m.," said press spokesman John Danth.

So, with Governor Sir Murray MacLehose as a guide, the prince saw bundreds of boat dwellers in the fishing community of Aberdeen, old men playing mahjong in the Kennedy Town Housing Complex, and late night shoppers at the open-air night market-oear the Mecao ferry

The prince, dressed in a light grey suit and blue tie, walked past lots of laundry hanging on lines alongside the path to the old town. At the Lek Yuen market, a produce vender offered the prince a bean sprout and he popped it into his mouth. She then gave him another and be ate it quickly, leaving the stall with a big smile

A nearby fishmooger held up a large fish for Prince Charles' inspection. The prince asked the price but adidn'tt buy any. Instead, he got a wet, fishy handshake from the fishmonger.

Chinese allow Germans to climb Himalayan peak

MUNICH, March 4 (AP) — The Peking government has granted permission to a West German team to climb the 8,013-meter Mount Shisha Pangm in Tibet, the Bavarian

State government says.

Qi Hua-yuan, charge d'af-faines of the Chinese Embassy in Bonn, Friday advised Bavarian Premier Franz-Josef. Strauss of the decision to allow a team from the German

Alpine Federation to climb the peak

The peak — scaled only once, in 1964 by a Chinese ex-pedition — was the last ma-jor mountain in the Himalayas to be conquared.

The federation said the group was "suprised and de-lighted" by the speedy deci-sion. The expedition would like to set out in 1980.

We should pay tribute to

For several months now, Saudi Arabia's General Ports Authority has been publicizing fines levied on foreign ships - in some cases reaching SR 20,000 - for polluting the port waters.

An observer of such publicity might soon come under the impression that the owners of those vessels find Saudi ports a convenient dumping area for their lubricating oil. In fact, they may even feel that oil products are so cheap bere they order their captains to dump it in our ports and get and oil change.

I personally feel - and this is a personal assessment — that this practice has been going on for a long time and that, either the former ports administration did nothing to stop it, or it was too husy with other priorities like easing port congestion. Or it was aware of the problem, tried to do something about it, but just didn't publicize its actions.

I have a suggestion. Just warning that any ship caugh luting here will be banned enterring Saudi waters.

Blumenthal in Japa to discuss trade tie

TOKYO, March 4 (AP) — U.S. Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and his party arrived in Tokyo Sunday evening after nine days of trade and financial talks in China.

Blumenthal was to meet later Sunday night and Monday with Japanese officials before returning to Washington.

Blumeothal told reporters on the flight from Shanghal to Tokyo that he essentially would be discussing "bilateral ecocomic problems and the summit" with Japanese leaders

An economic summit conference is scheduled to be held in Tokyo in late June.

Asked for specifies, Blumenthal said he would take up "their surplus and our deficit, " referring to the 12 mil-lion dollars deficit in trade with Japan last year. He also said problems of the dollar and foregn exchange markets would be discussed.

Bhumenthal said during a brief airplane interview that be had not heard reports that China was about to declare a ceasefire in Vietnam. He said the C didn't want to discuss Vietr all during his visit, althor purposely raised the subjeeral times to make the poir the United States oppose war and wanted a speedy
